Loose Pension Records From Lawrence County, Arkansas

Between the Years 1892 to 1928

The documents referred to in this writing are located in the Powhatan Courthouse at Powhatan, Arkansas 72458. They include both Confederate pensions and pensions obtained under the Mother's Pension Act of 1917.

The following is a partial list of Confederate soldiers and/or widows drawing pensions in Lawrence County, Arkansas. This does not necessarily mean that these men served from Arkansas.

The 1891 Act provided relief for disabled soldiers and their widows. It was later broadened to include soldiers incapacitated by age, accident or disease, and those who were indigents. Any widowed mother whose son had died but remained single during and after the war was also included.

Substantial information is found in many of the files on these persons. The application form indicates the number of the regiment or name of the Colonel under which the soldier served, service in the infantry, artillery or calvary, state from which they served, day on which they were paroled or released, the wounds obtained, the soldiers age, the length of time he had been in Arkansas, when and where the soldier enlisted, the company and commander, the number of acres of land owned, and amount and value of their personal property. The Proof of Service form includes references of persons who knew the soldier.

The Evidence of Physician form indicates the nature of the wound or wounds obtained, the subjects physical condition, his financial status, his means of support, extent of disability and value of property. The widow's affidavit provides the husband's name and references.

The husband's name, if known, is placed in parenthesis beside the widow's in each listing.

The Mother's Pension List

The Mother's Pension Act of 1917 was to provide partial support for needy mothers of children under 15 dependent on those mothers. The woman was eligible to receive a pension if she was in need and a widow, or had been deserted or incapacitated, or her husband was in prison. In addition she had to be a U.S. citizen and have lived in the county for one year.

Affidavits provide names and ages of children and references.

Other Pensioners

This list includes those persons for whom there were no applications or county records stating the type of pensions they received. Many times a handwritten note or letter was the only document available.

It could be inferred that the men on this list might have been Confederate soldiers since this would have been the only way they would have been able to draw pensions at this time. However, this researcher preferred to place them in this listing for lack of proof.

Frequently only initials were used for both men and women.
